The 13 top sights

In walking order, with the full address of each one. Red numbers are worth a separate trip: they sit outside the centre, so the line below each one gives the transport to use.

1 Sagrada Família Eixample

Antoni Gaudí's basilica has been rising over the Eixample since 1882 and is still unfinished, its clustered towers visible from half the city. Inside, tree-like columns branch into a canopy of geometric vaults lit by deep stained glass. The Nativity facade and the crypt are listed as World Heritage. Come early or late for softer light on the Nativity facade, and allow time for the museum beneath the nave.

Address Carrer de Mallorca, 401, 08013 Barcelona

2 La Pedrera, Casa Milà

Casa Milà, nicknamed La Pedrera for its rippling stone facade, was begun by Gaudí in 1906 and abandons the straight line entirely. Wrought-iron seaweed balconies climb the undulating front, and the rooftop's helmeted chimney warriors have become emblems of the city. The visit covers the courtyards, an apartment, the brick-vaulted attic and the rooftop, with sunset slots in the evening.

Address Passeig de Gràcia, 92, 08008 Barcelona

3 Casa Batlló

Gaudí's remodel turned a plain Passeig de Gràcia block into a house that seems to breathe, with a facade of bone-like balconies and shimmering trencadís and a roof arched like a dragon's back. Inside, the blue-tiled lightwell and the noble floor show the architect at his most playful. Night visits and immersive extras rotate through the year, so it is worth comparing ticket types before choosing a slot.

Address Passeig de Gràcia, 43, 08007 Barcelona

4 Mercat de la Boqueria

The Mercat de Sant Josep, known to everyone as La Boqueria, packs fruit displays, seafood counters, jamón stalls and tapas bars under a cast-iron canopy beside La Rambla. The metal roof went up in 1914, and a handful of counter bars still serve market cooking to shoppers and chefs alike. It gets elbow-to-elbow by midday, so the quietest browsing is first thing in the morning when restaurant buyers do their rounds.

Address La Rambla, 91, 08001 Barcelona

Free entry; stall hours on the official site www.boqueria.barcelona/

5 Palau Güell El Raval

The townhouse Gaudí completed in 1890 for his patron Eusebi Güell squeezes a palace behind twin parabolic gates just off La Rambla. Inside, a central salon rises the full height of the house to a perforated dome, and the rooftop bristles with trencadís chimneys. Its dim stone interior feels closer to a Gothic fantasy than to the bright trencadís of the architect's later work.

6 Cathedral of Barcelona Gothic Quarter

The Cathedral of the Holy Cross and Saint Eulalia was begun in 1298 and anchors the Gothic Quarter, its ornate main front a much later addition to the medieval fabric. The shaded cloister keeps its thirteen white geese beside the crypt of Saint Eulalia. Look for the Sant Crist de Lepant chapel, and take the lift up to the roof terraces with the tourist visit.

7 Basílica de Santa Maria del Mar El Born

The Ribera district raised its own basilica in the fourteenth century, and Santa Maria del Mar remains the purest Catalan Gothic interior in the city: three naves of bare stone, widely spaced octagonal columns and a great rose window above the sea-facing portal. Its acoustics make it a regular concert venue, and the evening light through the rose window rewards a well-timed visit.

Address Plaça de Santa Maria, 1, 08003 Barcelona

Free entry at worship times; service hours on the official site santamariadelmarbarcelona.org/

8 Ciutadella Park between El Born and the Vila Olímpica

Barcelona's central park was laid out in 1872 on the grounds of the hated military citadel that once controlled the city. Today rowing boats circle the lake, palms shade the lawns, and the monumental Cascada fountain anchors the northern corner, with the Catalan Parliament seated in the old arsenal. The zoo occupies the seaward corner, and the Castell dels Tres Dragons and the Umbracle line the park's edges.

Address Passeig de Picasso, 21, 08003 Barcelona

Free public park, open daily

9 Camp Nou Les Corts

FC Barcelona's stadium has been the club's home since 1957 and is back in use while its major Espai Barça rebuild continues around it. On non-match days the club museum and stadium tour walk visitors through the trophy room, the dressing-room tunnel and more than a century of Barça history. Expect cranes over the bowl for now, and check the club site for how the visit route changes during the works.

Worth a separate trip · 4.5 km W of the centre · Metro L3 / L5 · Museum and tour ticketed · Tickets and tours barcelonatickets.org/camp-nou/

10 Park Güell Gràcia

Gaudí laid out this hillside estate above Gràcia as a garden city that never sold, and it opened as a public park in 1926. The mosaic dragon stair, the hypostyle hall and the serpentine trencadís bench draw the crowds, while the wooded paths above give quieter views over the whole city. Gaudí's own house museum, his home from 1906 to 1925, sits inside the grounds.

Address Carrer d'Olot, 5, 08024 Barcelona

Worth a separate trip · 4.1 km NW of the centre · Metro L3 Lesseps · Free park areas; the Monumental Zone needs a timed ticket · Tickets and tours barcelonatickets.org/park-guell/

11 Montjuïc between the port and Plaça d'Espanya

The hill above the port gathers more of Barcelona's attractions than any other corner of the city. The Palau Nacional from the 1929 exhibition holds the MNAC and its Romanesque murals, with the Font Màgica at the foot of its stairs and the Olympic ring of 1992 behind it. The Fundació Joan Miró sits in a white building among the gardens, Poble Espanyol recreates streets from across Spain, and the castle on the summit, a fortress that once turned its guns on the city, keeps the widest view of the harbour. A funicular from Paral·lel and a cable car climb the slopes.

Address Parc de Montjuïc, 08038 Barcelona

Worth a separate trip · 2.6 km SW of the centre · funicular from Paral·lel · The hill and gardens are free; the castle, MNAC, Poble Espanyol and the cable car are ticketed

12 Tibidabo Collserola

The Collserola ridge behind the city ends in Tibidabo, where a hilltop amusement park has run rides since 1901 beneath the Sagrat Cor church and its outstretched Christ. The red Ferris wheel and the panoramas over the whole metropolitan coastline make the trip up worthwhile on a clear day. The vintage funicular climbs from the foot of the hill, and paths reach the summit for walkers who skip the rides.

Address Plaça del Tibidabo, 3-4, 08035 Barcelona

Worth a separate trip · 6.5 km NW of the centre · FGC + funicular · Park rides ticketed

13 Casa Vicens Gràcia

Gaudí's first house commission hides on a narrow Gràcia street, a summer villa finished in checkerboard green-and-white tile and marigold ceramics with a distinctly Moorish accent. Restored and opened as a museum in 2017, it shows the young architect before the curves took over. The house keeps original painted interiors upstairs and a garden cafe below, and timed entry keeps the small rooms uncrowded.

Address Carrer de les Carolines, 20-26, 08012 Barcelona

Worth a separate trip · 3.2 km NW of the centre · Metro L3 Fontana · Ticketed, with timed entry slots
